

Xenia Zolano
Rising Star Bio

Xenia is a Sophomore at Syracuse University, studying International Relations and Political Science. She is a huge advocate for Environmental Justice and continues to break barriers where women of color are needed the most. Recognizing the need for representation, Xenia started Syracuse University's first Mexican Student Association. Receiving various accolades such as The Honors Society Award, Councilor's Award, and Writer's Scholarship, Xenia is an exceptional representation of where hard work and dedication can lead you. Starting off as a reserved student, Xenia tributes growing out of her comfort zone and becoming a humanitarian due to EmpowHer. Appreciating the mentorship and mission of this organization, Xenia exemplifies the true value of leadership, social justice, education, and uplifting the qualities of sisterhood.
